Ashley Faulkner was drawn to practice law to make a positive impact on her hometown and state. She is a labor and employment lawyer working with clients in a variety of industries to creatively solve problems, often before litigation occurs. Ashley appreciates the human side of her practice and enjoys uncovering the “why” behind the matters she works on. She is often described as a “go-getter,” taking advantage of every opportunity to gain practical and leadership experience. Ashley strives to be known as more than a good lawyer and is often seen as a zealous advocate for her clients and an active volunteer in her always expanding community.
